A day with Revd Dr Emma Percy exploring the theological, missional, ministerial and practical implications of this relatively unvisited topic. Emma's writing and research explores the interface of mothering and ministry and how that dialogue can inform and enrich our self-understanding and ministerial practice.

This conference is not just for women clergy/ministers with children but for anyone – male and female, married and single – who wants to think about the impact of this theme in the Church and wider society.

Coffee, lunch and tea will be provided. The day will start promptly at 10.30am and coffee will be served after the opening session.

Parking is available at Bishop Woodford House with additional parking available very close by in Barton Road car park.

A crèche is available if required.
